

Marxism on Spanish History from 1950 - present

By Alain Badiou, Cornel West, Slavoj Zizek and Shomit Sirohi

I. Slavoj Zizek

I abstract the domain Spanish history as in fact with agrarian crisis, and even Sanchez type government and bureaucratic dominance of in fact the worst life in Marx's sense juxtaposed to this Sirohian journalism.

II. Cornel West with Badiou and Sirohi

In fact Cornel West argues the long set of crises in Europe is also a mixed success at the moment it is the shift to Syriza that accounts for mass protest, Spain and such countries are opposed to mass protest models and towards the more EU nature of finance, and economics these days - clearly a success already.

Badiou - in fact a mystification in Spain is the ideology of master and slave dialectics which then means the people have won with Nunes.

Cornel West asks for jazz on the puns and jokes - we call these works on poetic method in Marx - the new anti-Oedipus - you tell us why - is it because it produces the correct intervalence to argue out Incontinence.

In fact, Sirohi here - it was a light of incontinence spreading through the world after a history of far rights, - in a joking fashion - the incontinence of Christianity expressed then - imagine a riot of time in protests with minimal public spending and dynamics from EU and radical riots again and such a hic Rhoda of the worst kind of then schemas of life - imagine sitting at home at a young age and growing up in these times and working at Cervantes - the bitch of a life as Amores Perros argues.
